AMERICAN VOTERS SPLIT ON OBAMA’S IMMIGRATION MOVE, QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY NATIONAL POLL FINDS;
PRESIDENT’S APPROVAL NEAR ALL-TIME LOW

American voters are divided on whether President Barack Obama should take action to address the immigration issue if Congress fails to act, as 45 percent say the president should issue an executive order while 48 percent say he should not, according to a Quinnipiac University National poll released today.

At the same time, support for immigrants is at its lowest level ever measured by the independent Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pe-ack) University Poll. Offered three choices on what to do about illegal immigrants:

- 48 percent of American voters say they should be allowed to stay, with a path to citizenship, down from 57 percent November 13, 2013, and the lowest this number ever has been;
- 11 percent say immigrants should be allowed to stay, but not be allowed to apply for citizenship, consistent with previous surveys;
- 35 percent say illegal immigrants should be required to leave the U.S., up from 26 percent 12 months ago and higher than this number ever has been.

There is a wide gender gap on Obama’s action, as women support it 50 – 39 percent, while men oppose it 57 – 39 percent. Support is 59 – 33 percent among voters 18 to 29 years old, but drops among older voters, with voters over 65 years old opposed 53 – 36 percent.

Democrats support Obama’s immigration move 74 – 18 percent, with opposition at 75 – 20 percent among Republicans and 51 – 40 percent among independent voters.

“While President Barack Obama’s popularity wallows, support for immigrants wanes as Americans look at immigration reform with ambivalence,” said Tim Malloy, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll.

American voters oppose 68 – 25 percent Congress shutting down “major activities of the federal government” as a way to block Obama’s immigration move.

Only 44 percent of Republicans support a shutdown, with 47 percent opposed.

“Americans seem divided on immigration, but they agree on one thing: They don’t want a government shutdown over President Obama’s action on immigration,” Malloy added.

President’s Approval Rating

American voters give Obama a negative 39 – 54 percent approval rating, close to his lowest-ever 38 – 57 percent score in a December 10, 2013, Quinnipiac University poll.

Democrats and voters under 30 years old are the only party, gender or age groups who approve of the president.

Only 42 percent of American voters trust Obama more than Republicans in Congress to do what is best for the nation, while 47 percent trust Republicans more.

It’s good for the country that Republicans have taken over control of the U.S. Senate, voters say 51 – 37 percent, but 67 percent of voters expect more gridlock in the next two years. Gridlock will be Obama’s fault, 44 percent of voters say, as 42 percent would blame Republicans.

“American voters are happy the Republicans have the ball, but don’t feel confident there will be a lot of scoring on the deal-making front,” Malloy said.

“If that’s the case, the numbers say blame will fall on Obama as much as Republicans.

“With the exception of voters born after 1985, Obama’s approval is deep under water.”

Ransom for Hostages

The U.S. should never pay ransom to terrorists who are holding American hostages, voters say 70 – 21 percent, with support among all listed groups, including 77 – 16 percent among voters in military households. American voters agree 83 – 13 percent that paying ransom to terrorists encourages more hostage taking.

Former Navy SEAL Robert O’Neill should have remained quiet about his involvement in the mission to kill Osama bin Laden, voters say 69 – 19 percent, but only 10 percent of voters, including 16 percent of voters in military households, say he should be prosecuted.

From November 18 – 23, Quinnipiac University surveyed 1,623 registered voters nationwide with a margin of error of +/- 2.4 percentage points. Live interviewers call land lines and cell phones.

The Quinnipiac University Poll, directed by Douglas Schwartz, Ph.D., conducts public opinion surveys in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Florida, Ohio, Virginia, Iowa, Colorado and the nation as a public service and for research.
